He Saves Day for Stallings' Men by a Catch

Cracking Under Strain When Brilliant Ninth Retires Mackmen and Gives Basis for a Two-Game Lead for Banner.

of the coop and leaped high in the air, cracking his heels together. Josh Devore could be heard yelling high above the tumult from the stands and the rest of the Boston players acted like men possessed.

A shadow of Stallings' smile passed over the face of the big manager and then he began rapidly ordering next play. Deal got credit for a stolen base from the official scorer when he went to third on that play, which will be discussed for many a day. Whether Deal had really started out to steal is a question, but it is doubtful if Stallings would have ordered such a play at such a time.

Manu on Second.

A passed ball by Schang put Manu on second and Evers walked, but the bases emptied when Calhoun rolled to Barry, who tossed to Collins, forcing the captain of the Braves at second.

In the Mackmen's end of the ninth Harry drew a base on James. Schang tried to bunt but failed and finally took a batter out at third strike as Barry read for second. Gowdy dropped the ball, but Schang was out anyway, under the rules and Barry got a stolen base.

Jimmy Walsh, former member of the Yanks, was sent up to bat for Plank. James passed him with four straight balls, while Stallings yanked from the bench. Eddie Murphy tried to bunt after James had twice failed to get the ball across the plate on him and then Jimmie Hilldrobrad called a strike. On the next pitch Murphy hit a sharp roller to Maranville, who scooped up the ball with a single motion, leaped over on second base and reached first base on Walsh. Then he shot the ball over to Schmidt ahead of Murphy, closing the game with the most spectacular double play of the series.

For five innings big Bill James poured his speed across the plate with such blinding velocity that the Mackmen did not seem to see him. In that time only one runner was put on base, and that was the first man to be in the game. Thereafter the Athletics hung helpless before the huge youngster from Carbonado, Wash.

Plank Held Braves.

Meanwhile, however, Plank, 30 years young, and one of the wisest men of the mound, was holding the Braves in check by the power of his old left arm. They hit him freely enough, they got on bases often enough, but they could not score.

It was a marvelous exhibition by both the youth and the veteran.

The Athletics played with more life today than they did the day before, but the old punch was lacking. The old punch seems gone forever.

It is said that the young Braves "peddled" their first base on today, talking, chattering things at the Mack men which were calculated to wound the feelings of the older players and to "get their goat."

Yesterday the Braves pursued this practice until they had the ordinarily cocky Collins greatly annoyed. No one, not even the "fingers of the Washington club, in the days of their greatest rivalry with the Philadelphia, ever went farther the followers of Connie Mack as ruthlessly as the Braves in this series.

It was noticeable from the stands, says a Philadelphia newspaper indignantly, "Hey, Hilldrobrad, how many benches are you going to allow in this game? Why don't you make that Boston bench shut up?"

Hilldrobrad paid no attention and a low murmur continued rising out of the Boston camp as the Braves talked lightly and loosely of this man and that.

Royal Rooters in Evidence.

Boston's Royal Rooters were very much in evidence again, before, during and after the game. They cheered and sang and when the game was over paraded round the field headed by Captain Johnny Evers, former Mayor Fitzgerald and other celebrities. Many are still celebrating in Philadelphia tonight while others left with the two ball clubs on the special train which left for Boston early in the evening. According to the Royal Rooters, the Braves will receive the greatest welcome ever given a baseball team when they appear on the field at Fenway park on Monday. Close to 40,000 fans are expected to greet the

CREIGHTON ATHLETICS SWAMP GRAND ISLAND

Blue and White Scoring Machine Overwhelms Visitors Before Cheering Crowd.

Visitors Make Heroic Defense, but Fall Before Big Guns on California Hill.

BY MILES GREENLEAF.

Those sturdy and vivacious yokels from Grand Island college may love their cows and chickens, but they found the Creighton football field yesterday afternoon when the gridiron gladiators of the Blue and White stood right up in the moilin' and sat on 'em to the tune of 'T to not anything.

Grand Island showed many outbursts of unexpected speed, and threatened the Creighton goal on many occasions, but accounted rough spots on the road just when they seemed to have a good chance to get their names in the papers in something better than ledged nonpareil.

It took the local Catholics quite a while to get started, but when they once came to the conclusion that they were indulging in a game of football they were most vehement in their assault upon the enemy's positions. Creighton's dapper young backfield, which has been lauded previously in these columns, was very naughty all the time, and busted holes in the Grand Island line through which the St. Ben electrical parade might easily have passed without touching either side.

Two of Creighton's best ground gainers, Steffen and McGuire, were not permitted to perform until the last half, since Coach Harry Miller apparently wished to make the final moments the more agonizing for the foe. The Creighton line now built up by the Creighton coaches Miller and Chester Dudley, has yet to reach its limits, and has now compiled 168 tallies to its opponents' none. Bellevue, Kearney Normal and Grand Island college being the prostrate victims.

Creighton Started Slowly.

Yesterday the Creighton lads were slow in getting into action, and while they were never in danger of being trimmed, might easily have been scored upon in the early stages had the slightest bit of luck broken for the Grand Islanders. The Blue and White line was far from impenetrable and some of the backs, even including the justly-celebrated Mister Coffey, were inclined to act as if they were attending a kinstoning instead of a football game. But as time wore on they began to perk up a bit, and in the final whistle blow they were performing in a fashion of bringing to the hearts of everybody except the unfortunate personages who had been lured eastward from Grand Island.

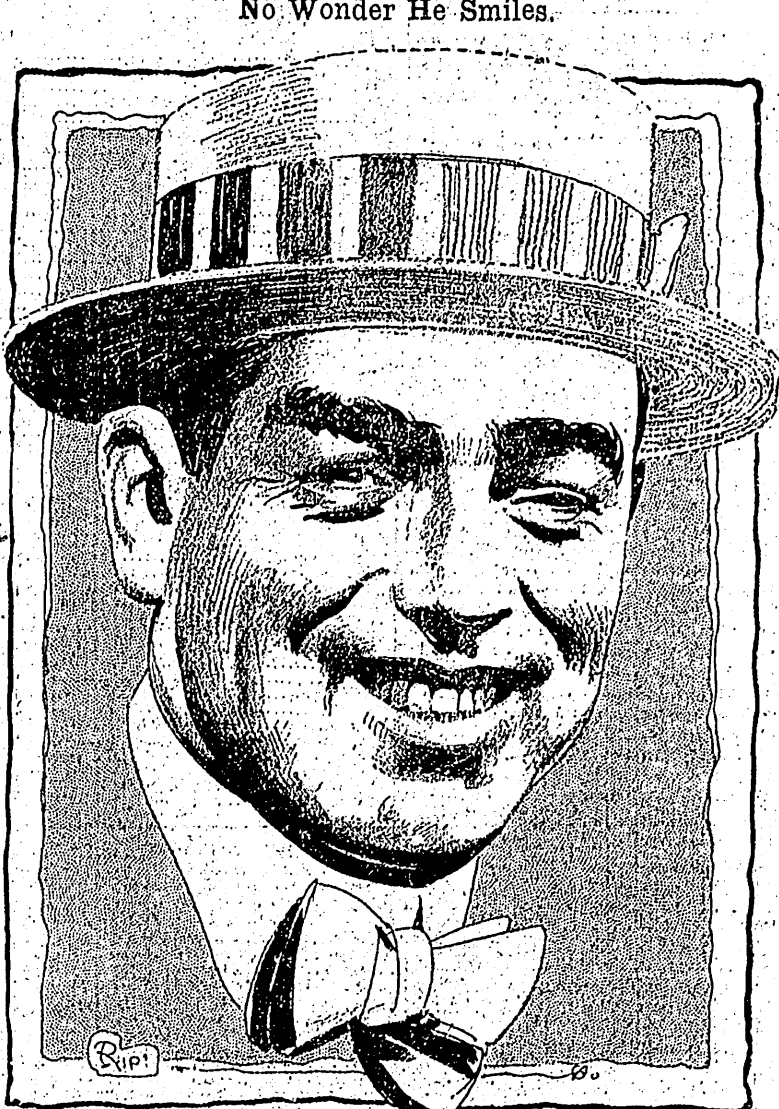

Carrig, Creighton's dandy quarterback, went over for the first touchdown in the first quarter in the next play following the forward pass of "Baker" Platz to Cap Brennan, while racket annexed some thirty-five yards. "Baker" placed his kick, and the game was over.

Thanks to Platz and Schwalger and Wagner, the ball was in Creighton's possession at the opening of the second period on Grand Island's ten-yard line. Platz took the pigskin across the final bar by one of his twisting tackle plunges, and Tambea kicked goal. The first half ended with the ball in Creighton's hands on Grand Island's twenty-yard line, the score Creighton 13, Grand Island 0.

Miller Addresses Team.

Assistant Coach Dudley, being in Kansas City watching the Haskell Indians, Creighton's opponents next Saturday, Coach Miller had to do all the coaching during the interval. Platz and his little talk to his flock seemed to have the desired effect, for the blue and white gentlemen did their best work in the second half. It must be mentioned that Grand Island was likewise considerably spruced up when the kick-off came, for Jerome and Garmon and "Buck" simply tipped the dickens out of Creighton until Wagner caught a forward pass that had bounced along four of those extremely hard hit Grand Island heads. Platz then executed a swell swirling gallop outside of left tackle for a touchdown, and Tambea missed goal, which filled him with such chagrin that he swore off chewing gum for the next thirty seconds.

A forward pass from Platz to Bretszko got forty-five yards after the kick-off, and another one, Carrig, to Cap Brennan, was good for a touchdown, which Tam-

Cornhusker Machine Lacks Aggressive Punch and Weak Line Lets Coyotes Carry Game Into Nebraska Territory Much of the Time.

Special Dispatch to the World-Herald, Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 10.—After escaping the Coyote goal by the skin of their teeth, the Nebraska Cornhuskers, were handed a tie today by the eleven representing South Dakota university. Not only that, but the northerners held the Cornhuskers to a blank score, 0 to 0.

The Coyotes ripped through the Nebraska line frequently and one had the ball under the Nebraska goal posts, but were kept from scoring by a valiant stone-wall defense that the Nebraska have shown for the first and only time this year.

Nebraska's showing was a keen disappointment. The individual men performed as well as could be expected, but the well-oiled machine that developed early last year was missed in this contest. There was no one to guide the Nebraska squad with a steady hand, Hawkins put up a plucky defense, and returned punts for better than did Howard last week. Potter's entrance into the game late in the last period marked the display of a flash of real form, and the men worked at once with more snap, yet the machine lacked the necessary punch to win.

Many Open Plays.

The game was featured by open play. Forward pass after forward pass was attempted by the Coyotes in the third and fourth quarters when they opened up with all they had, yet they gained but twice with the slip, once for four yards and once for eighteen. Nebraska never negotiated a successful pass, although they tried several.

Chamberlain, Rutherford and Howard were good ground gainers for the Nebraska, but the Coyote defense tightened when the necessary yards for the fourth down were needed and the Cornhuskers were frequently forced to punt but on several occasions were held for downs, even in the middle of the field.

For the Coyotes, Vidal, Ferguson and Henge did all the gaining. Potts at center, the player over whom a conference was held for eight hours preceding the game, was outplayed by Chamberlain, the Nebraska center, and many of the Nebraska gains went through him.

Cornhusker Line Weak.

On the other hand the South Dakotians found it a bargain to buck through the Nebraska right side and frequently after being through the line, the Coyotes were only checked by the Nebraska secondary line of defense.

Howard negotiated the longest run of the game when he sprinted twenty yards from a fake punt formation. Nebraska never seriously threatened the Coyote goal, while a fumble by Chamberlain late in the second quarter, which South Dakota recovered, gave them the ball on Nebraska's six-yard line. Vidal twice attempted to slip through the line, once he was hurried back. The second time he made a yard, Ferguson was unsuccessful of the third trial and then Vidal fell back to his twenty-five-yard line and attempted a goal from the field. Corey broke through and blocked the kick and Nebraska recovered it on her own twenty-seven-yard line a few minutes before time was called.

The Last Half.

South Dakota carried the attack into Nebraska territory early in the third quarter, attempting a series of forward passes. Failing with these, Vidal tried a field goal from the twenty-five-yard line which was wide. Nebraska pointed out of danger and holding the Coyotes on downs took the ball and carried it into the visitor's territory. The quarter ended with the ball in Nebraska's possession on the South Dakota thirty-five-yard line.

Failure to execute a forward pass on the fourth down gave the Dakotians the ball on their own thirty-yard line early in the fourth period. An exchange of punts returned it to Nebraska's possession in the center of the field. The Nebraska worked the ball down the field until Halligan, Howard having been replaced by Delamater, punted over the goal line. South Dakota then carried the ball to the Nebraska thirty-five-yard line where play ended.

OMAHA TRIMS NEBRASKA CITY BY SCORE 61 TO 7

Captain Kellogg Records Touchdown on Mills' Boys Right at Start.

Locals Then Proceed to Get Even by a Thorough Walloping.

BY ROSS H. CHAMBERLEN.

With no feeling of pity whatever in their massive crests, the minions of Boss Tommie Mills of the Omaha High school yesterday afternoon continued their destructive career by walloping Coach E. B. McCandless' enterprising young men from the Nebraska City High school.

The final count was Omaha 61, Nebraska City 7.

With their right wing slightly bent after less than five minutes of play, by a sterling piece of football on the part of Captain Bennie Kellogg of the visiting squad, who galloped down the field for forty-five yards for the first touchdown, forward kicking a goal. Omaha engaged in a banking movement that was calculated to finish the enemy.

After Kellogg's brilliant play, which netted Nebraska City her only count, Omaha settled down to give the visitors quite a sound lacing. Playing old-style football almost continuously, the local high men were soon able to tie the score, but thereafter the out-state lads had not a looking.

Old Style Football.

Only once or twice did Omaha try any open play, resorting at all times to line plunging and end runs. Chick Nelson, Carl Tutes, Lyman Phillips and Paul Withey were responsible for Omaha's over-accumulating score. Withey's tote, which was off-side a week ago, showed great improvement when it came to kicking goals, and he missed but a pair of his attempts.

Neville covered more ground yesterday than he did in the Shenandoah game. He made half a dozen pretty runs, but one for seventy-two yards, that registered a down in the last quarter, was about the proudest thing of the kind seen here in several seasons.

Mills shifted his battle front in several places for yesterday's game, but kept his first string men in till the last quarter, getting them hard for the scrap with Lincoln next Friday. Coach McCandless has a bunch of promising youngsters, but they need a lot of polishing. It was Nebraska City's second game of the season, and is the first year the school has supported a coach.

The Game in Detail.

Omaha elected to defend the south goal. After a few seconds of active scrimmage Lutes fumbled outrageously and Captain Kellogg of Nebraska City recovered the ball. Sprinting down the field for forty yards, he galloped over the goal line for the first touchdown. Kellogg then placed the ball in the hands of the visitors, but Omaha was unable to handle the visitors. Score, Nebraska City 7, Omaha 0.

Second quarter—By a series of line plunges and end runs by Johnson, Kellogg, Lutes, Omaha built up a Nebraska City five-yard line. Johnson went for the down. Withey kicked goal. Lutes intercepted Nebraska City's first attempt at a forward pass and gained fifteen yards. Omaha failed after her fourth down on the punt back Neville recovered the oval and picked up twenty yards. Neville ran thirty yards around Nebraska City's right side. Nichols gained ten more through the visitors' line. Berry finally going over for the down. Berry missed his kick.

MICHIGAN WINS ROUGH GAME WITH VANDERBILT

Southerners Handicapped by a Green Back Field—Final Score, 23 to 3.

Maulbetsch of Wolverines and Sikes of Vanderbilt Big Ground Gainers.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 10.—Playing through a rainstorm, which was responsible for many fumbles, the football eleven of the University of Michigan today defeated Vanderbilt, 23 to 3. The southerners, handicapped by a green backfield, put up a fierce fight, especially during the last half. The game was rough and spectacular.

During the last period play was halted while Captain Raynford of Michigan protested against unfair tactics by Cody of Vanderbilt. The officials, however, decided Cody had not committed any act for which he should be removed. A few moments later a substitute replaced the aggrieved tackle. Maulbetsch of Michigan and Captain Sikes of Vanderbilt were the powerful ground-gainers. The former was worked overtime and probably advanced the pigskin more than any two other players. The success of Vanderbilt in recovering the success of Michigan kept the score down. On four occasions the ball dropped from a Michigan man's arms when he was tearing toward a touchdown.

Early in the first period a fumble by Hught, when he was tackled fiercely, gave Vanderbilt the ball. Cody promptly dropped kicked a field goal from the twenty-five-yard line. Michigan scored a touchdown and Hught kicked goal toward the end of the quarter. Maulbetsch carried

Captain Brickley was undergirded in operation for appendicitis while Minhan and Logan were disabled by injuries. It was not until the last period that the Harvard team triumphed. Washington and Jefferson entered the fourth period leading, 9 to 3. Then Hardwick moved from left end to left halfback to fill one of the gaps, went over with the

SERIES SO FAR SPEAKS WELL FOR HARRY RYAN

Naturally, it isn't at all becoming to pull that "I told you so" stuff, but it certainly goes in the case of Harry Ryan of the Ryan Jewelry Co., who predicted, through these fairly reliable columns last week that Boston probably would cop the world's series in four consecutive games.

Mr. Ryan saw the Braves whip the Giants in four consecutive games, and the straightway made the prediction they would win the world's series. His went further by predicting four in a row, and two of them already have been put on ice.

Pretty poor prognosticator, is Mr. Ryan? Well?

Donlin hitting for Marquard hit a triple, scoring the home run in the eighth, scoring the tying run himself on Bescher's sacrifice fly.
